YANIC SIMARD
Principal Designer, Toronto Interior Design Group

Yanic Simard developed an interest in interior design growing up around his family's construction business in Montreal. At an early age, Simard learned that good design and quality workmanship are integral to the art of living. He later explored the interior design industry in Montreal but spent several years in television as an entertainment host before establishing himself as an interior designer.

In 2002, Yanic Simard founded the Toronto Interior Design Group where he leads a group of designers creating new and innovative spaces for a wide range of clients. Over the years, Simard has gained an international reputation designing projects in Montreal, Toronto and Miami.

Simard's designs are often achieved by combining old with new, and high with low elements and have been featured in many Canadian such as Citytv's CityLine, The Toronto Star, The National Post, and Home and Decor. Simard has also partnered with HomeSense to create consumer educational seminars.
